THER WARD REPUBLICANS.—A meeting of the Republicans of the Third ward was held at the Court House last evening, for the purpose of forming a Gardeld and Arthur club. The meeting was presided the purpose of forming a Garfield and Arthur club. The meeting was presided over by Mr. John Clator, and Mr. Fred Miller acted as Secretary. A goodly number of names was enrolled, among the number two Democrats who have concluded to cast their lot with the Republican party. The meeting was adjourned to Friday evening at 7:30° clock at the same place, when a permanent organization will be effected.

ACCIDENT AT THE ÆTNA MILL.—Yester-day afternoon part of the roof of the Ætna mill fell in with a crash, but luckily no one was in jured, which was something short of the miraculcus. Mr. George Orumbacker was engaged in putting on a new tar roof, and had finished one side of the ventilator, which caused it to sink some inches and finally fall in. A number of men were working in the mill at the time, but escaped uninurt, as the roof lodged on the rafters. Mr. Jones, the manager of the mill, stated to a reporter last evening that the damage was neconsiderable and would not amount to $100. THE ALLEGED NORTH END OUTRAGE.—
Chris. Bache was before Justice Phillips yesterday afternoon on a charge of Indecent assault, alleged to have been made on Ricka Hoschroth, aged ten years. A number of witnesses were examined. The nature of their evidence was not such as to fasten the guilt upon Bache, and he was premptly discharged. The girl's story was that her cries were caused by a dog that licked a painful sore on her 190. It was a case in which many facts were brought out as to the careless watch some parents keep over their children. The time to guard children is while they are in their tenderer years. Influences and associations of youth always tell upon character in after years.

A Good Refort from Marion County.—
A correspondent writing from Fairmont says: "The Republicans are in better spirits here than they have been for years. Marion county need not be classed among the doubtful counties in this campaign. She will cast a majority of her votes for George C. Sturgiss, and elect her entire county ticket. The late editorial in the INTELLIGENCES, showing the increased expenses under the new Constitution, started the people to thinking and they are determined to overthrow the unprincipled party that has increased their taxes no much by its careless and reckless conduct. The great revival of Republican feeling forstells great good for our poor people and our State."

warnut Grove Camp Merring.—Rev. F. I. Sweeny, of Smithfield, O., preached at 7:30 Monday evening. His sermion was an earnest appeal to the unsavee to at once accept Jesus Christ as a present and personal Savior. Ten or twelve persons asked an interest in the prayers of the church, and many others were deeply moved and confessed that they, too, felt their need of salvation. CAMPAIGN MUSIC.—There is always great danger in over doing anything, no matter what its intrinsic merit may be. The music of file and drum is soul stirring at times, but when the echo is wakened all day long and sometimes far into the night, it ceases to fall ravishingly on the ear of the most patient patriot, and becomes a nuisance. Practice makes perfect, is the truthful burden of the adage, but it was never meant that the practice of healing drums and playing files should be kept up as a sort of continual go-as-you-please drums and playing fifes should be kept up as a sort of continual go-as-you-please noise making match. These thoughts have been suggested by hearing several short sermons preached by long suffering Christians. They have no desire to repress campaign enthusiasm, but in the interest of harmony and future peace they implore a little moderation. The fiery untamed small boy is a great offender in his sphere of selion, but for real unadulterated annoyance a lively drum corps with a sphere of action, but for real unacuterated annoyance a lively drum corps with a full head of steam on can discount him two to one. In behalf of the aforesaid long suffering persons, therefore, we ask for, at least, short intervals of repose.

John W. Boring and a small number of this body indicated that death after themusic the Captain stuck his file in his pocket and called the few together. General White was introduced with much clear by President Boring, and after the crowd had become settled on the front beuches, the orator began:

"The canvass is open. Our Republican friends have organized themselves. We have seen ithe result of this organization in the last few days. It is, therefore, necessary for us to organize, and go to work vigorously, and make our Republican ir indicated them understand some intends understand, if it is possible for them to understand, the truth, sa it is a little hard to make them understand some indicates, and it is a singular fact all these candidates, and it is a singular fact all the second the control of the c vigorously, and make our Republican irriends understand, if it is possible for them to understand, if it is possible for them to understand, the truth, as it is a little bard to make them understand sometimes. Five parties have nominated candidates, and it is a singular fact all these candidates have been Union Generals." (This was said with a significant emphasis on the word Union.)

The General then for a few moments turned his attention to the speech of Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, which was delivered last Saturday night in this city. That speech evidently was sown in good ground, as it frightened all Democrats, and filled them with admiration of the man and fear of his utterances. Mr. White is evidently one of the above, as he praised the man and his speech for a few moments, and then took certain portions of it for a text and went to work upon the text. He in the first place tackled the assertion that Gen. Woodford made in regard to the utility of the National Bank Notes which the Republican party gave to the country. "The word of the word of the second of the second of the word of not Radical."

The speaker then turned his attention to National Banks and bonds, and gave a heartsickening picture of the injury they do the poor man, the toiling man, the laboring man, but forgot to illustrate his do the poor man, the toiling man, the laboring man but forgot to illustrate his points by holding up W. H. English, Democratic candidate for Vice President, as a National banker and bondholder.

After this brilliant effort the General got down to his stroughold, his vedemecum, the DeGolyer paving business, and the Oredit Mobilier yarn. On these subjects the General is cut fait, and when he strikes an attitude and portrays the horrors of these cutrages, he is only inferior to Hans. Good or Bridge Cracraft when they shake their hair loose and exclaim, "Good God, gentlemen, can these thing be true?"

Winfield Scott Hancock" is a sweet morsel under the tongue of the speaker, if one can judge from the number of chan-ges General White rings on it, but this prolific subject finally became exhausted. The Solid Scuth next came up, but was summarily disposed of with the ex-horitation, "extend the hand of love and brotherhood to these loving people who are pining for a return of their love and affection; help them to build up their fac-tories and their work shops, and improve their country."

The tariff question was then taken up and the speaker said the subject was one of merely local interest. "You down here ought to have a tariff, as you work in iron, but if you can get your calico, broad cloth, and other articles at a reduced and very low price would it not be better for you if you could? Gen. Jas. Garfield has voted to keep a high tax on coffee. tea, &c., and to reduce the tax or duty on iron and steel He belongs to the Coden Club of England, an avowed Free Trade organization, and is pledged if elected te carry out its principles." The General was assisted in his speech by an old German who asked questions, and another fellow whose nationality we could not determine, who answered them. The answers and questions, were often irrelevant and obscure, but they stood in place of enthusiasm.

The Electoral Commission was next taken up, and handled in a style peculiar to the speaker, but it was nut to the comperbut they stood in place of enthusiasm.

The Electoral Commission was next taken up, and handled in a style peculiar to the speaker, but it was up to the comprehension of his auditors and to those on the front seat, who nearly went wild over the narration of its horrors. The Greenback party was passingly alluded to as an ignis joinus, a "jack ma-lantern" party. He then said that Ben Buller had said that four-fifths of the soldiers he had led during the war, and nearly all the soldiers he had met during the war were Democrafa. "Ben's slippery," called out the front seat man, and the speaker hastened to explain "That's Ben says that, not me."

Other points which the gentleman is up on, were handled by him in his usual fresh and entertaining manner, and when he concluded the front seats were lairly convulsed. The Fourth ward will have to come out stronger next time.

THE GAS WORKS.—Dropping in the City Gasoffice yesterday we held a short conversation with the Secretary of the works. When the picce of gas was put down there were some who prophesied that the short consumption of the summer months would not bring in enough revenue for the running expenses, and when we inquired as to how the figures were panning out the answer was very satisfactory. The consumption, said the Secretary, has decreased very little, and the revenues are fully up the demands and expenses of the works.

"It is there any increase in the number of consumers?"

of his wife. The Sergeant heard the

that he had no jurisdiction in the matter;
that her only redress was the courts above.

Some time in the course of the day Mr.
Cochran, landlord of the hotel, found a pocketbook belonging to the deceased, in which were sixteen dollars in money and a letter written by the unfortunate man. The letter was apparently written some it time ago, and was penned in the fear that the writer would meet a sudden death. The habit of using drugs of a deadly nature had probably grown so strong upon in the poor fellow that he was seldom without a premonition of his death from their effects. He requested to be shaved, but not washed, and that his body be kept for three days after death, as he had a horror of being buried alive. He directed that he be buried in the clothes found on him, and forbade a post-mortem examination. He also stated that he had no money.
